Mitch EARLEYWINE, Ph.D., of the State University of NY (SUNY) at Albany

1) Understanding Marijuana: A New Look at the Scientific Evidence, 2002, Oxford University Press, Chapter 7, "Marijuana's "Health Effects – The Pulmonary System," pages 154-158. This entire book should be read by everyone on both sides of the chasm who engage in the debate about marijuana.

2) "Decreased respiratory symptoms in cannabis users who vaporize," Harm Reduction Journal, April 2007, Volume 4 Number 11. Full text accessed in 2016 at: <http://harmreductionjournal.com/content/4/1/11>

3) "Pulmonary Harm and Vaporizers," Chapter 11 in The Pot Book: A Complete Guide to Cannabis, edited by Julie Holland, M.D., 2010, Park Street Press. An update to what Earelywine first wrote about vaporizers in his book Understanding Marijuana, cited above

Dale GIERINGER, Ph.D., of California NORML

1) Health Tips for Marijuana Smokers, revised 1994, published by California NORML, is a 35 page anthology of several articles written by Gieringer about the health benefits of medicinal marijuana and the health hazards of smoking it.

2) "Marijuana Water Pipe and Vaporizer Study," Newsletter of the Multidisciplinary Association for Psychedelic Studies (MAPS), Summer 1996, Volume 6 Number 3. This 5 page report of research funded by MAPS & California NORML challenges many popularly held assumptions, but the research now is outdated, as testing needs to be applied to the latest generation of vaporizers.
